

PRESS RELEASE

Luxembourg, 26 February 2025

Swissquote Movie Week returns this year to celebrate more finance-themed movies

Swissquote Bank Europe and Kinopolis to screen three Hollywood blockbuster films this March

Swissquote Bank Europe is bringing back its Swissquote Movie Week for a second year in partnership with Kinopolis, offering movie-goers the chance to experience three iconic finance-themed films on the big screen at Kinopolis Kirchberg from 19 to 21 March at a low price of 5 euros per ticket.

Following the success of the inaugural edition, which saw 500 tickets requested, this year's carefully curated selection of films explores the high-stakes world of finance, market meltdowns and power plays on Wall Street.

A natural fit for Luxembourg's financial and cultural scene

Building on Luxembourg's position as a prominent European financial hub, this event's themes resonate strongly with local audiences. While exploring the world of finance, these films also provide insight into broader societal and economic dynamics, offering both entertainment and reflection. Additionally, the event enriches Luxembourg's cultural landscape, where cinema remains a powerful tool for storytelling and public discourse.

This year's line-up includes

- March 19 – *Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps (2010)
Directed by Oliver Stone, this thrilling sequel to the original Wall Street sees Michael Douglas reprise his role as the infamous Gordon Gekko, a character whose rise and fall in the high-octane world of Wall Street has captivated audience for decades.
- March 20 – *Margin Call (2011)
Set during the early hours of the 2008 financial crisis, Margin Call takes viewers behind the closed doors of an investment bank on the brink of collapse. Starring Kevin Spacey, this intense drama explores the moral dilemmas faced by key player as they confront the impending disaster that would reshape global markets.
- March 21 – *Trading Places (1983)
A classic comedy starring Eddie Murphy and Dan Aykroyd, Trading Places is a humorous yet sharp commentary on the absurdities of Wall Street's power structures. When a streetwise conman and a wealthy commodities broker swap lives, the result is a hilarious and thought-provoking exploration of social and economic inequality.

“We are delighted to bring the Swissquote Movie Week back to Kinopolis Kirchberg for a second year running,” says Jeremy Lauret, Head of Direct Investing at Swissquote Bank Europe. “Finance is at the core of our economy and movies are a powerful way to spark curiosity and stimulate reflection. The three movies selected by Swissquote this year are sure to entertain, educate, and foster thoughtful discussions about finance.”

Ticket booking:

Tickets go on sale starting February 26, with a special price that makes it easier than ever for everyone to enjoy the magic of cinema!

For more information and ticket bookings, visit <https://kinopolis.lu/en/content/wall-street-movie-week/>

- END -

Press contacts:

Apollo Strategists

Lou Weis

E-mail: lou.weis@apollo.lu

Tel: +352 26 20 28 38 35

Swissquote Bank Europe, Communications Manager

Valeria Leone

E-mail: valeria.leone@swissquote.lu

Tel: +352 26 03 22 79

About Swissquote Bank Europe

Swissquote Bank Europe is the EU bank of the Swissquote group, and has been at the forefront of online investing for 25 years. Powerful digital platforms, transparent pricing, and personalised banking come together to deliver private clients, intermediaries and financial institutions a more powerful and efficient way to manage wealth.

Based in investor-friendly, AAA-rated Luxembourg, Swissquote Bank Europe has full bank status and is regulated by the CSSF under the oversight of the European Central Bank.

For more information about Swissquote Bank Europe, visit www.swissquote.lu